

Business Alignment

What is it?

The Intelitech Group provides solutions that will properly align your organization's resources to achieve maximum efficiency and effectiveness. As each resource is optimized, the overall production capacity of your organization is elevated. We help you to accomplish this by determining:

- What resources are impeding the organization to move to the next level and how these resources can be optimized.
- What needs changing, what each change should be, and how to implement that change.
- Your value to your stakeholders, clients, and marketplace.

Expected results

The people, processes, and technology of your organization will be aligned resulting in maximum efficiency and effectiveness.

The Intelitech Group offers consulting services that correctly align people, processes and technology within debt-recovery businesses. To align means to adjust the three business spheres of people, processes, and technology within your organization so that they contain enough resource to sustain themselves and support the other two spheres. Organizations that are not aligned often have difficulty being productive, require more staff, experience animosity among departments and staff, and have a high level of client dissatisfaction. The structure that alignment provides can alleviate these problems and many more. Additionally, each organization has a unique style that requires specific intervention when aligning. There is no "off the shelf" package or solution that will provide the alignment necessary to set a business apart from the competition.

The process of alignment involves:

1. Determining which of the business spheres, if any, are not in alignment.
2. Reviewing the amount of resource needed in the three business spheres.
3. Adjusting the people, processes and technology spheres of the business to be in alignment with the others as determined in step two.

4. Evaluating that the realignment has achieved the desired result.

As a result of aligning the three business spheres organizations are able to:

- Become the most productive in the shortest amount of time possible
- Improve their return on investment
- Reduce expenses where appropriate and necessary

There are many things to consider that can be difficult to see as a business owner or as one responsible to see that things are right. Just as it is not wise to proofread ones own term paper, finding an objective point of view will enable greater insight and ability to change appropriately. Alignment will produce within the organization a great complement of resources that will work together for the benefit of all aspects of the enterprise.
