The Intelitech Group Announces Partnership With The Bahamas Telecommunications Company

International telecommunications company selects CollectorTalk! as collections training tool

Vancouver, Wash. - July 21, 2010 - The Intelitech Group, a business consulting practice and technology solutions provider for the collection industry, announced today that The Bahamas Telecommunications Company, an international communications company, has chosen CollectorTalk! as its preferred training tool to increase the effectiveness of its collections training processes.

As a benefit of this new partnership, collections staff at The Bahamas Telecommunications Company will be armed with the skills they need to overcome debtor excuses and confidently collect the maximum amount on each call. "Some of the biggest issues facing collection agencies include inconsistent training programs, high turnover among collectors, and high operational expenses associated with training," said The Intelitech Group's Senior Partner J. Douglas Gregg. "CollectorTalk! is an easy-to-use computer-based training tool that builds interpersonal skills through simulated debt-recovery scenarios. With this unique learning system, The Bahamas Telecommunications Company will be able to learn techniques that can help them collect more in less time."
