The Intelitech Group Welcomes Six New Associate Partners

VANCOUVER, Wash.—July 6, 2010—The Intelitech Group, a business consulting practice and technology solutions provider for the collection industry, has welcomed Ryan Yoes, Jason Dodge, John Hollowell, Kara Collett, Michael Houston and Chris Wood as associate partners. The newly created positions are in response to the firm's increasing number of clients and their growing demand for innovations in scoring, dashboards and business analytics.

“Last year was a pinnacle year for The Intelitech Group as we achieved significant growth by consistently taking a holistic approach with our clients and focusing on three key components: people, processes and technology,” said The Intelitech Group's Senior Partner J. Douglas Gregg. “With the addition of our new team members, we expect The Intelitech Group to continue to grow by providing businesses the tools needed to improve profitability.”

Ryan Yoes brings over ten years of account management experience to The Intelitech Group and will be responsible for assisting clients and partners with the firm's business analytics programs. Prior to joining The Intelitech Group, Yoes worked in client care for the Honda Motor Company. Yoes has a B.A. in Business Administration from Washington State University.

Jason Dodge will focus on standard report building and providing client care within the Business Objects team. He has over five years of managerial experience and received his B.A. in Business Administration from Washington State University.
